

UC TRAC GLOBAL FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

The UC TRAC Global Fellowship is a mentoring and training opportunity for Early-Stage Investigators (ESIs) engaged in tuberculosis research, who are from and working in low- and middle-income countries (LMIC) with high burdens of tuberculosis. This opportunity, granted by the University of California Tuberculosis Research Advancement Center (UC TRAC) provides tailored mentorship, capacity-building, and stipend funding to elevate the research and career paths of participating UC TRAC Global Fellows.

PROGRAM OFFERINGS

UC TRAC's Global Fellowship is a one-year program. Core offerings include:

- Individualized research and career mentoring and networking.
- Discussion series on advances in scientific fields of TB, ensuring equitable partnerships in research, peer-to-peer learning with colleagues, among other global health topics.
- Professional skill development in grant and manuscript writing.
- Professional development funds to attend conferences and networking opportunities.

Applicants must be planning to or be involved in research affiliated with a current UC San Francisco or UC Berkeley faculty or research project, and demonstrate evidence of commitment to TB research.

ELIGIBILITY

Eligible applicants include:

- Postdoctoral Fellows, Fellows in training, or Clinical Fellows.
- Assistant Professors.
- Advanced Doctoral Students who are focusing on TB for their independent dissertation research.
- Professional Researchers or Research Scientists within 10 years of their terminal degree.

ESI from diverse research backgrounds in clinical, basic, behavioral, epidemiological, implementation, or health disparities are welcomed to apply. Applicants must have or be in the process of obtaining a doctoral-level degree (ex. PhD, MBBS, MD), be engaged in TB research, and be from and working in an LMIC country with a high burden of TB. Applicants must have an established mentor at UCSF/UCB.
